From idea to conviction

From the very beginning, the family-run business HiPP embraced the principles of living "in harmony with nature". As far back as the fifties, HiPP started growing grains and fruits on natural, untreated land to make Bircher Muesli – for the first time ever from organic production.

Out of conviction, the family-run farm was changed over to organic farming and the ecological concept developed further, step by step. It took a whole lot of persuading, but Claus Hipp, a firm believer in organic farming, was able to convince more and more farmers of his idea.

"To all of us, a healthy and sound environment is of great value. Even more so when it comes to the natural development of our children:

There is no greater gift we can give to the next generation than doing all we can in our daily lives to preserve it for the future."
